How You Can Use A Plaid Duvet Cover To Change The Look Of A Room

Many people love the versatility of a duvet cover. It protects a duvet which can give you much needed warmth in cooler weather. Duvets are fantastic because they are lightweight and very warm. You can also change duvet covers very easily and for much less money than replacing an entire bedspread.

A checkered duvet cover can be a fantastic choice for any room. There are numerous reasons for this. The first is that checkered is a sample which will never go out of style permanently. It is usually recognizable and gives a comfortable and relaxed feel to any room in which it is used. This can be quite desirable in a bedroom setting. The second is that there are many different colors contained in any checkered. This is fantastic because it allows you to pull different tones and shades from the checkered duvet cover to use throughout the room.

If you want a truly versatile checkered duvet cover, look for one which has two sides. You can pick one with a checkered side and one with a solid side. That way, when you want a quick change of look, you can simply flip the duvet cover over. If you are going this route, make sure you pick one that is designed to be reversible. You want to make sure that the opening for the duvet is along the seam as well. There is nothing worse than seeing a duvet cover with a zipper going through the midpoint of the exposed side.

Consider dressing up your duvet cover with different cushions. Again, this is where the multiple colors in the checkered will come in handy. You can use shams which come with the duvet and pull other colors as well. A mix of solids and plaids can give a really nice look to any bed.

Rather than going checkered everywhere in the room you may find you like the way it looks more if you use solids or very small patterns everywhere else. You don't want to compete with the checkered itself. It can make a room look confusing and the overall look can clash if you try and introduce other strong patterns. That is the last thing that you want if you are tiresome to make a room feel peaceful and relaxing.

Learning how to incorporate a checkered duvet cover into your decor is a fantastic skill to master. Because they are so versatile you may find you despise to switch to anything else.
